The traditional northern European roof shingles were made of clay and hung from a framework atop the building rafters. Colors ran from brown to reddish brown, but quickly stained and grew mossy in the wet European winters, so a variety of grays and darker greens are also possible. Wooden shingles seem to have been rarely painted and the wood faded to a grayish color. We suggest using acrylics as your base color and oil washes or stains for a variety of finishes. Studying photographs of the real thing will pay off — no two shingles looked alike!

PACMONOSHOP.COM

PACIFIC MONOGRAPH
This product is for experienced hobbyists only, and could be a choking hazard for children.

© Pacific Monograph
1124 Kahili, Kailua HI 96734

PACIFIC MONOGRAPH

SCRATCHBUILDER
SPECIAL!

1,000+
EUROPEAN SHINGLES
PMARM-002